REQUIRED ESSENTIAL SKILLS (RES) EVALUATION TOOL

RES includes: Standard Precautions, Resident Rights, Safety and Communication.

All of these aspects of care must be evaluated for each individual skill performed. Handwashing is performed by the candidate at the beginning of the first skill and then can be verbalized at all other appropriate times during the Clinical Skill Evaluation. The Required Essential Skill (RES) evaluation steps that the proctor/evaluator will observe for during the Clinical Skills Test are:

Does the Candidate:

- Standard Precautions/Infection Control
- Resident Rights
- Safety
- Communication/Comfort Needs

A table is provided with information about the specific behaviors the proctor/evaluator will observe for when scoring the Required Essential Skill (RES) evaluation steps for Standard Precautions/Infection Control, Resident Rights, Safety and Communication/Comfort Needs. Instructors and candidates should realize that there several more behaviors that are appropriate when providing care to residents that are both taught and are important to safe, quality care, when using this table. This table is used to establish minimal standards of competency.

SKILL	STANDARD PRECAUTIONS/ INFECTION CONTROL	COMMUNICATION/ COMFORT NEEDS	RESIDENT RIGHTS	SAFETY
-------	--	---------------------------------	-----------------	--------

Throughout the test, if a candidate uses gloves, whether required or not, the candidate is expected to remove their gloves without contaminating themselves. This would be reflected, in the evaluation labeled, "Uses Standard Precautions".

Providing privacy is not required for certain skills, unless the facilities policy requires or resident request privacy measures. These skills include: ambulation, feeding, hand & nail care, measure and record respirations, pulse, blood pressure and transfers. For testing purposes, the candidate may choose to provide privacy or not for these skills only.
